

Buck Weaver Is Lauded as Only Real Rival of Jack Barry

BUCK WEAVER IS LONE RIVAL OF JACK BARRY AS KING OF SHORTSTOPS

Chicago Captain Is Playing Marvelous Ball in Field and Hitting Like Consummate Fiend—Philadelphia Writer Lauds Callahan's Star in Lengthy Story.

By SPICK HALL.

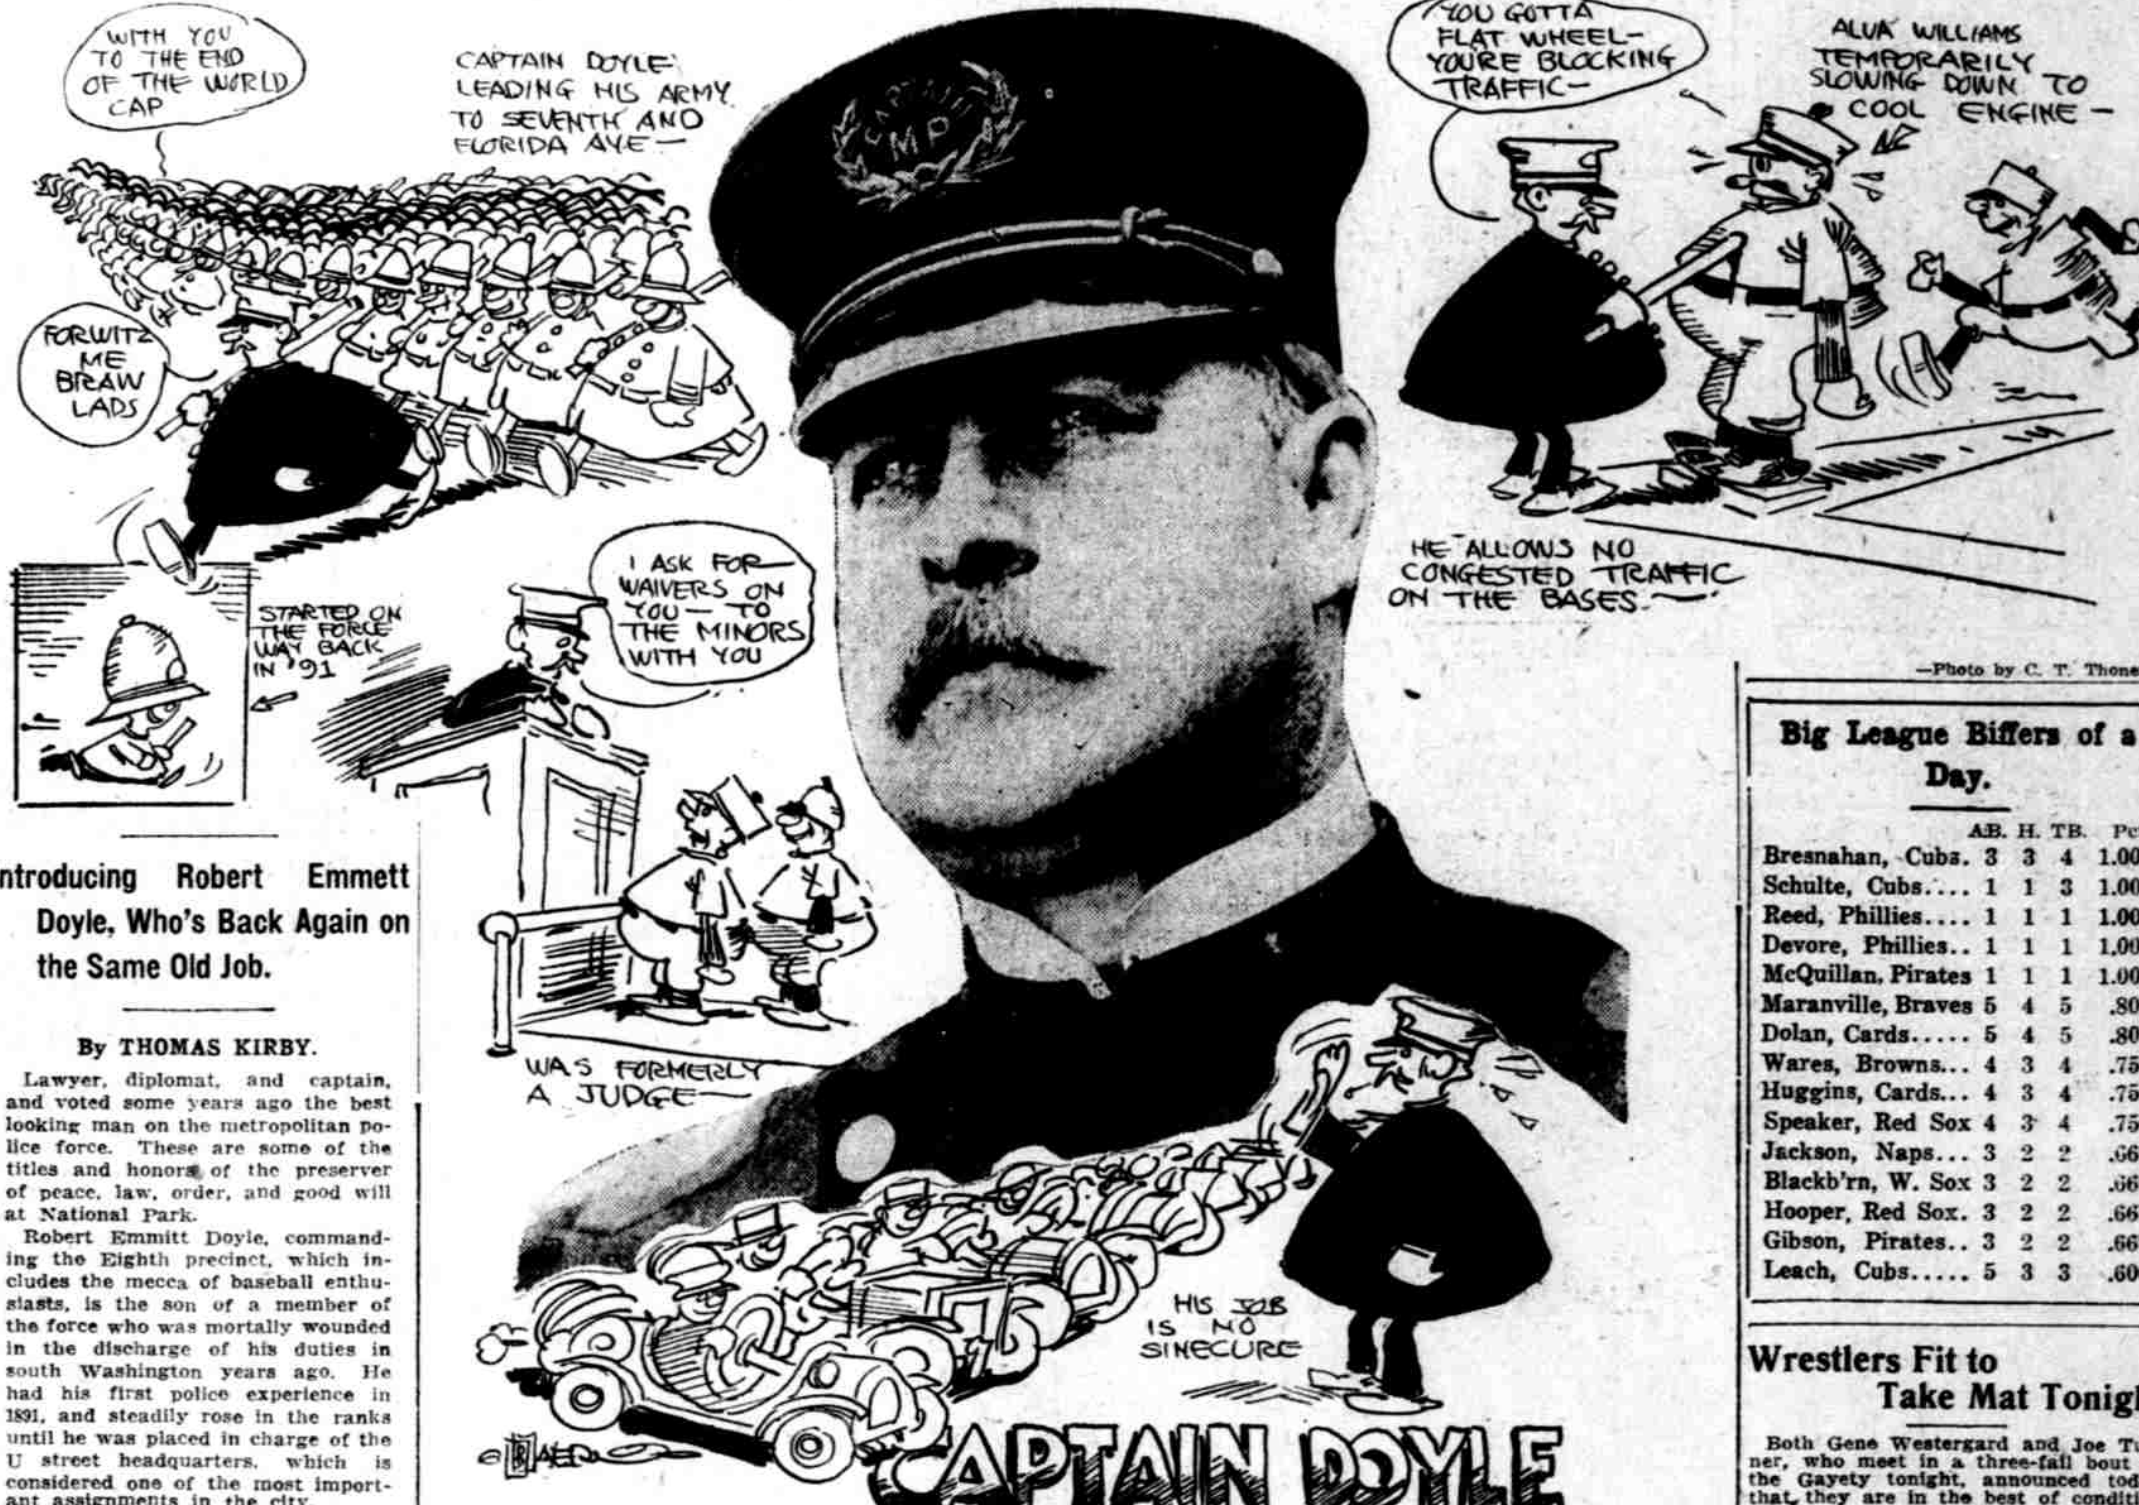

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—In Buck Weaver the Chicago White Sox have one of the best shortstops of the present day. Weaver is the only real rival of Jack Barry, admittedly the king of shortstops in the American League. It was due largely to the splendid play of Weaver that the White Sox were able to finish within fourteen points of the Red Sox last season. His work throughout the year was the most talked of topic in the vicinity of Comiskey park, and wherever he went on the American League circuit he performed with such unfailing precision that the fans throughout the country realized that Buck was one of the big stars of the pastime.

There is no doubt that Weaver would be even better than he is if he had had a partner of the Eddie Collins type with whom to work around second base since he has been a member of the Chicago club. Barry and Collins have improved their inside and mechanical play greatly by the mere fact that they are always working together. Weaver has never had the opportunity to do this because there has never been a man at second on the White Sox since he broke into the majors who could be relied upon to help him work up the lightning plays which have to be pulled off around the key-stone sack.

Even Barry has nothing on Buck Weaver in throwing. Barry may get his pegs off a fraction of a second faster than Weaver, but Buck shoots even across with a trifle more speed than the athletic shortstop, making it about a toss-up between the two on the throwing end of the game. Any one who saw him perform in the game against the champions at Shibe park on Saturday knows how accurate he is in throwing from his angles. His made one throw from deep short while on the run in the opposite direction from first base that was a marvel of speed and accuracy.

Not only that, but Weaver plays that style of ball all the time. He cannot cover as much ground as Barry, as the natural result of being a slower

LAWYER, DIPLOMAT, AND CAPTAIN IN CHARGE AT BALL PARK

Introducing Robert Emmett Doyle, Who's Back Again on the Same Old Job.

By THOMAS KIRBY.

Lawyer, diplomat, and captain, and voted some years ago the best looking man on the metropolitan police force. These are some of the titles and honors of the preserver of peace, law, order, and good will at National Park.

Robert Emmett Doyle, commanding the Eighth precinct, which includes the mecca of baseball enthusiasts, is the son of a member of the force who was mortally wounded in the discharge of his duties in south Washington years ago. He had his first police experience in 1891, and steadily rose in the ranks until he was placed in charge of the U street headquarters, which is considered one of the most important assignments in the city.

Born in Washington, he was educated in the public schools and received his bachelor of law degree from the National Law School, being one of several members of the District bar who are members of those who see that the law is upheld before the courts are reached.

A baseball crowd is a most cosmopolitan assembly. In it are found representatives of all creeds, races, colors, and classes, and in order to handle it without constant trouble requires tact, judgment, vigilance, patience, and diplomacy. Captain Doyle has succeeded so well in these many roles that after a recent shift he has been returned to the U street station, and is once more on the job with much force, enthusiasm, and incidentally his return to the old post marked a change in the matter of the Nationals losing games.

There are hundreds of fans in Cleveland who think that Chapman has something on Buck Weaver, and a few who are the dyed-in-the-wool rooters, who can see nothing but the home team and the comings and goings of their man first, without really going into the merits or demerits of the players under consideration.

QUIMET DEFEATED IN BIG TOURNAMENT

Only Three Americans Are Left in Matches for British Golf Championships.

SANDWICH, England, May 20.—Francis Ouimet, United States open golf champion, was eliminated from the British amateur golf championship today in his second round when he went down to defeat before Tubbs, of Littleton, Tubbs won two up.

This left only three Americans in the running: Frederick Herreshoff, of New York; Charles W. ("Chick") Evans, of Chicago; Harold Weber, of Toledo, and Arthur G. Lockwood, of Massachusetts.

Frederick Herreshoff, of New York; Charles W. ("Chick") Evans, of Chicago, and Harold Weber, of Toledo, Ohio, were the only Americans left in the British amateur golf championship here this afternoon.

Quimet by Tubbs threw a decided damper over the Americans, which was only partly dispelled a few moments later by Herreshoff's victory over J. R. Platt. Weber's defeat of K. M. Carlisle and Evans' worsting of Scott merely offset the defeat of Arthur G. Lockwood and Ouimet.

Frederick Herreshoff, of New York, was defeated one up by the Hon. M. Scott, leaving but two Americans, Evans and Weber, in the championship.

High Praise Given Duckpin Officials

Although the last chapter of the 1914 duckpin tournament will not be written until tonight, when two pairs of teams will figure in the roll-offs for high scores in their respective divisions, the awarding of prizes will be made, on all sides today were heard the highest words of praise for President H. B. "Pop" Halley and Secretary "Mac" Goldberg, for the successful manner in which they have conducted the tournament, which is about to close.

Particular praise is bestowed upon Halley and Goldberg, but to the entire personnel of the board of directors and officers goes the commendation of the local bowling colony for the excellent cooperation in their respective divisions. The event, which has embraced a period of three weeks, is claimed to be the best small-pin tournament which has ever been staged in Washington.

CENTRAL AND TECH TO MEET IN FINAL BATTLE

Today's Contest Between Schoolboy Teams Has No Bearing on Championship.

By BRYAN MORSE.

Central and Tech meet in the final game of the annual high school championship series at Catholic University today. Walter Cox is slated to do the pitching honors for Central, while Mark Stowers is the choice for Tech.

The result will have no bearing upon the championship winner, Eastern having already taken the title. The rivalry existing between the two schools since 1902, when Tech became a high school by itself, separating from Central, serves to keep both teams on edge regardless of the standing of the teams in the race.

Catholic School comes forward with an extra claim to distinction today, combating the argument that athletes are generally poor students. In the marks of scholarship standing recently published, the names of several prominent athletes are found well at the top of the list.

In the sixth form Ned Harris, a half-miler and basketball player, easily leads all the other boys with an average in the regatta until Saturday, June 6. He is followed by a number of other athletes, and the Princeton intercollegiate games with Brewer and Carter on Saturday.

Among the leaders in the upper classes are Dyer, first baseman, "Tiny" Holmes, a pitcher, and Kirkpatrick, third baseman on the baseball team. R. Holbydy, captain of the track team, is also among the top-notchers in studies, as is Van Sternberg, another track man, Billy Northrup, shortstop, is boasting a mark of 90 in studies.

With but few boys, George F. Green, physical director at Cathedral, has had an unusually successful season. In basketball the team more than held its own, despite the fact that big few veterans returned. A number of good athletes were developed in the indoor sport, among them being Ireland, Cranford, Holmes, Brewer, Curnutt, Lockwood, Northrup, and Harris.

The baseball team has been able to successfully cope with any of the local high schools, and has lost but one battle this year. Holmes, White, and Brewer have proven as strong a collection of pitchers as is boasted by any of the other schools in the city.

The fact that the year has been unusually successful with but a handful of boys speaks well for the development of the youngsters. There are several other boys bound to be heard from next season. In football Cathedral is expected to make a strong bid next season.

Entries for the annual high school championship field and track meet are expected to be in today. Tech will have something like thirty-five athletes of competition. Central will muster thirty, Western twenty.

A program committee of the faculty athletic advisers will meet today at Central High School. Officials for the affair to be held Saturday will be announced tomorrow.
